

Animal Adoption – Information and Guidance

Adding a pet to your family can be a wonderful and rewarding experience. It can also be a problem if you are not prepared first. Before adopting any pet, first review your lifestyle. Look at the hours you are away from the house, the ages of any children, yard size, allergies of others in the home, and if renting does the landlord allow pets. You also need to be prepared for expenses in general care, medical care, training, equipment and emergencies.

Once you have your list then begin to look at what type of animal would be best suited for your lifestyle. For example, if you are gone for long periods of time an older pet may be best as it may not require as much housebreaking or basic training.

Visit the library or numerous websites for information on breeds and their general personalities. Determine what might be the best general type of animal for you.

When you visit the shelter you will see a wide range of animals with various demeanors, energy levels and needs. We will assist you in finding the right pet for your home.
